Proposals shall be on forms furnished by the commission.

Each bidder shall state in his proposal—

2. The time within which he will agree to complete the work.

Proposals shall be in a sealed envelope, addressed to T. H. Petrie, Secretary of the Loan Fund Commission, City and County of Honolulu, and plainly marked on the outside, "Proposal for the Construction of Section One, Oahu Belt Road."

All proposals shall be accompanied by a certified check, as provided for in the specification, for a sum equal to five per cent (5 per cent) of the amount of proposal.

The commission reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any defects.

Plans, specifications and forms can be had on application to the Engineer of the Commission, Room 10 McIntyre Building. A deposit of ten dollars ($10.00) will be required on each set of plans and specifications.

ANDREW ADAMS,
Chairman Loan Fund Commission,
City and County of Honolulu.

A neatly presented, inviting, Morocco bound book, with delectable effeminate rose pink edges to its two hundred leaves, falls as a heritage from the Southern Pacific railway officials to the workmen, brakemen, firemen, engineers, conductors, and other road employees, to offset the primal flush of victory which these agents experience on being admitted, after a great struggle for precedence, into the employ of the powerful syndicate.

The brief preface, called a General Notice, comprising five curt sentences, forms a summary of obedience and courtesy and an agreement on the part of the employees that they shall assume all risks!

The brevity of this compendium and the insinuations it entails are usually sufficiently succinct to inspire qualms of capability.

The book is confined to the rules and regulations of the road, aptly illustrated with automotons dressed in uniforms, swinging lanterns, and waving flags, and the thousand and one signals, audible and visible, signs of inner workings of a complicated mechanism, which beset the paths of the men who hold society in the palm of their right hand.

Society, usually leaning back luxuriously in plush coaches, imbibing de Maupassant, Balzac, Robert Chambers, or the latest Harper's Weekly, travels over the American continent, unconsciously content in its blissful and unruffled confidence in those whose life and death obligation it is ever unable to meet.

On shipboard, even the most stilted of travelers are never too pompous in their buckskin boots and gloves, their field glasses and curiosity to indulge undauntedly in their craving for intimacy, and every part of a steamer is invaded, from engine-room to galley, for a practical solution of the arts and crafts of the sea.

But the wig-wagging of lanterns and flags, the diversified blasts of an engine's whistle, or the mysterious hieroglyphics of the road which flash by the windows of the coaches are always placidly ignored even by the uninitiated, whose memory of continental tours, which might readily have held an endless source of pleasure and interest, had they borrowed the conductor's guide book in black Morocco and rose pink leaves, is generally but a confused blur of apparently trivial incidents which punctuated an endless routine of monotony.

How are these able to doze over stupid stories in a railway coach who are ordinarily alert to each insignificant nautical incident?

Who herald the far distant spray of a passing whale with a general alarm and a nervous focusing of opera glasses, and read about Wall Street ethics when the train attendants thrill with the signal of a head-on collision?

Who spend hours in the uncomfortable restrictions of a barber shop at sea, minutely examining commonplace specimens of turquoise matrix, or postcards, which they passed by every day for years unnoticed in local Chinese grocery stores, and who yawn dismally while the engineer with a short, curt blast signals to his confederates, the passing of a coming train over the brink of a broken trestle?

Even though indifferent to the subject of a railway journey, the far off, doleful blast of the whistle as its engine surges ahead in a mad frenzy of flight, the echoes rebounding and reverberating through rock-bound canyons, never fails to arouse sentiment in the traveler, stirring the inert imagination to the possibilities embodied in the nery human hand of him who leans far out, anticipating the most trivial sign of disaster.

The psychology of danger is exemplified in the iron-bound rules and regulations with which the intricate network of the system is controlled.

Its vitality is assured only by the faithful observance of individual obligation.

It is this assurance which vivifies society and keeps alive that interest which continually surges through its veins!

SOCIAL NEWS OF THE DAY.

Mrs. Charles Rice of Kaula was the honoree at a very charming informal tea, at which Mrs. Gerrit P. Wilder entertained from four to six yesterday afternoon, at her home on Ualakaa street.

Summer has been characterized by a number of informal affairs and yesterday's tea was one of the prettiest of the warm season.

The rooms were thrown open and gracefully arranged with baskets and boughs of Golden Shower, the tea table, where Mrs. Walter Dillingham poured coffee, and Mrs. Richard Ivers served tea, being adorned by a basket of these exquisite yellow blossoms.

Mrs. Gardner Wilder served punch in a bower on the lanai.

About twenty-five guests responded to their invitations.

Among those present were Mrs. Charles Rice, Mrs. Thomas V. King, Mrs. Walter Francis Frear, Mrs. Walter Francis Dillingham, Mrs. Richard Ivers, Mrs. Francis Mills Swanzy, Mrs. D. P. R. Isenberg, Mrs. McGauley, Mrs. William L. Whitney, Mrs. Henry Foster Dutton, Mrs. Worthington Ames of San Francisco, Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Charles T. Wilder, Mrs. Gardner Wilder, Mrs. Harry Wilder, Mrs. Arthur T. Marix, Mrs. Ernest Waterhouse, Mrs. Byron K. Baird of Hilo, Mrs. Widdifield, Mrs. Guyler and Miss Roberts.

Mrs. George R. Carter has sent out cards for a dancing party at which she will entertain a number of the younger set, on Saturday evening, in honor of her daughters the Misses Elizabeth and Phoebe Carter.

Senator and Mrs. Charles Rice of Kaula, and their two children, after a delightful visit to the city during the polo season, as house guests of Mrs. Thomas James King left today for their home on the Garden Isle.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Beckley, who arrived yesterday in the Mongolia were the guests of honor at a very elaborately appointed luau at the home of Mrs. Mary C. Beckley at Diamond Head which a large number of guests attended.

A pretty innovation was the raising of an immense silk Hawaiian flag when the Mongolia was sighted, and which floated out in the stiff breeze from the lofty terraced hill which Mrs.

Beckley owns on Magazine and Spencer streets.

The flag could be seen all over the city, many expressing curiosity about it, and the bridal couple plainly saw it as the steamer approached the harbor.

The luau was served at half past one yesterday in a coconut pavilion on the beach at the water's edge.

It was fragrant with long strings of maile and quantities of flowers growing in the grounds, the ends being enclosed by two large draped American and Hawaiian flags.

The long table was dressed with ferns, la'i leaves and maile, and exquisite calabashes filled with rose pink hibiscus blossoms and maile adorning the center.

Leis of pink carnations and maile were draped over the shoulders of the guests and during luncheon, Kaal's Quintette played and sang Hawaiian airs.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. George Beckley, Her Majesty Queen Liliuokalani, Prince and Princess Kahanalanaole, Mrs. Julia Afong, Mrs. Mary Montano, Mr. and Mrs. J. Almoku Dominis, Mrs. Stillman, Mrs. John Ena, Mrs. Henriques, Miss Mary Afong, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Taylor, Mrs. Walter Macfarlane, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Widemann, Mrs. Berg, Mr. Thiele, Mr. Allan Herbert, Mrs. Kaal, Mrs. George Brown, Mr. Francis Brown, Mr. Thomas Ena, Mr. James Parker, Mr. Francis Brown, Mrs. Henry Smith, Miss Juanita Beckley and Mrs. Annie Conrad.

At the conclusion of the elaborate luau which was given in their honor yesterday at Waikiki, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Beckley motored to the Campbell place at the Peninsula which will be their future home.

The house has been renovated and artistic touches added to the interior.

Master Charles Stevens, the son of Paymaster and Mrs. H. E. Stevens, U. S. N. has sent out invitations for a farewell party, at which he will entertain at his home in Old Waikiki on Friday evening, in honor of Messrs. Henley and William Chapman the sons of Captain and Mrs. Chapman of Fort Shafter, who will leave in the transport Sherman on Sunday to attend school in Salt Lake City, Utah, whither the detachment under the command of Captain Chapman has been ordered.

Princess Kawanakoa, who has been abroad is now en route home, and expects to reach Honolulu in time to spend the winter holidays in the islands.

The three children of the princess who have been under the care of Mrs. Christian Conrad on Molokai will arrive in time to meet their mother.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Tenney Peck, and Mrs. Newton Locke left today for Kaula where they will be the house guests of Senator and Mrs. Eric Alfred Knudsen for a week or ten days. Later they will visit Judge and Mrs. Kingsbury at Waikiki.

Last evening Mrs. Mary C. Beckley entertained at an elaborate poi supper at Aquamarine for those who had assisted her in the preparation of the luau at which she entertained yesterday afternoon.

The same decorations were used as in the afternoon, a ladies sextette playing and singing during the feast, which was a very delightful feature.

Covers were arranged for eighteen.

DR. M'CORMACK
WILL INTEREST

President Emil A. Berndt, of the Central Improvement Committee, is co-operating with the executive of the Territorial Medical Society to obtain a fitting popular reception and hearing for Dr. J. R. McCormack, chairman of the organization committee of the American Medical Association on the occasion of his address on sanitation at the Hawaiian Opera House tomorrow evening.

Dr. McCormack comes from Kentucky and is a personal friend of Dr. W. C. Hobdy, late of the Federal service but now in private practice here and for some time past a member of the Board of Health. He is also intimate, officially and personally, with Dr. J. S. B. Pratt, president of the board, having been in communication with him for some time, besides giving him valuable assistance when Dr. Pratt, then sanitary officer, was making a tour of investigation on the mainland, extended to Panama. "Things About Doctors which Doctors and Other People Ought to Know," is the topic of Dr. McCormack, who arrived yesterday morning in the Mongolia, for his address at the Opera House Wednesday evening. Mr. Berndt is sending out the following circular to the presidents of local improvement clubs:

Calls on Governor.

Governor Frear yesterday received a brief call from the noted lecturer, and afterwards he was taken in hand by Secretary Mott-Smith and various members of the local medical fraternity, and taken for a drive about the city.

The Governor, in speaking of Dr. McCormack's call, said:

"Dr. McCormack has taken a great interest in public health matters for a long time, and for the past ten years devoted himself to the work of lecturing on this subject under the auspices of the National Medical Association. As chairman of the organization committee of that organization he has been instrumental in organizing many state organizations along similar lines as the national body.

"The people of Honolulu should appreciate greatly having a man of Dr. McCormack's caliber coming all this distance, on special invitation, to help us solve our problems, and there should be a large attendance to hear him on Wednesday night."

Dr. McCormack is described as a pleasant and interesting man to meet, and one who carries with him a large amount of that quality generally described as "magnetic."

SMUGGLING AS A FINE ART.

The extent to which smuggling is carried on by women is almost beyond belief. It is not so much among those who might almost be excused in the name of dire necessity, if they are going to purchase anything whatever abroad. Indeed, beginning with the steerage—a very decent and law-abiding set, as a rule—it grows steadily worse as one rises. Not in political causeness or legislative lobbies can one begin to find the stifling atmosphere of corruption which pervades the first-class saloons of the largest transatlantic liners, the cynical disregard of the laws of the land, the unblinking hypocrisy, the utter lack of any moral principle. The beautiful and the rich wave the Stars and Stripes and sing the national anthem at dinner the last night out, and hail with shouts of joy the first glimpse of the green goddess, rather proud of the fact that they have fled with the chief steward a fraudulent declaration of what they owe the Government they are cheering, with the direct intent to cheat it—steal from it—to the extent of their courage and ability. They freely denounce the sugar and diamond frauds, but, as a matter of fact, the Government loses more—or did until recently, through these amateurs than by all the professional smuggling combined.—Willard French in Lippincott's.
